

The Writing Centre

If you cannot write well, you cannot think well; if you cannot think well, others will do your thinking for you.
— Oscar Wilde

What students are saying

“Although I had an idea of what I wanted to say, it was very disorganized and I ended up being confused about my own thoughts. The instructor was amazing and after listening to my ideas, she tried to understand me, think in my shoes, and helped me organize my thoughts so that I was able to walk out confident that I knew what I was doing”

Become part of the Writing Centre community!

Together we build deeper understandings of “effective writing”

We share and develop strategies for brainstorming, argumentation, editing, & more

We enhance each other's skills and confidence

There's more to writing than performing knowledge & skill

WHY, HELLO THERE

Think of writing as conversation

Who are you writing to?

- What impact do you want to have on them?
- What might they think of your claims?

Who are you writing about?

- How have you engaged with their work?
- What might they think of how you've portrayed them?

Talk about your writing!

Talk with a writing instructor

- refine your ideas
- anticipate your reader's response

Writing instructors support your efforts to develop as a critical thinker and impactful writer
